SENIORS, THE TIME HAS COME

As some people write in their friends' annuals, "Its been quite a year and I'm sort of sad it's over." Well this is the feeling of the High Times staff as we begin to push aside our typewriters and stencils and reach for our hats and coats to go into the world of the big people.

We've all worked hard and done quite a bit, but here's our chance to do something worthwhile; the world belongs to us,-- if we have the courage to go and get it. It won't be handed to us on a silver or any other kind of platter. So seniors, one last word-- GET GOING.

This year's Student Council has worked to help students at Central, to raise money for various worthy causes and to perform helpful services for the school and faculty.

Throughout the school year, the Student Council has operated the school store, in which school supplies and books for English classes were sold. The Council also maintained a suggestion box in the hall. Other services included maintaining a barrier, commonly called the Berlin Wall, in the hall to divert traffic; and forming a clean-up committee for the Teen Club.

At various times during the year, the Student Council performed special duties for the school. One was organizing the Christmas fund in which over $210 was collected for the National Children's Homes of Britain. The Student Council also planned the Academy Day talks. For this, the group contacted two speakers, one from the Navy and one from the Air Force, to discuss their respective academies.

The Student Council was also active in the anti-smoking campaign, in securing several tickets for the Robert Mayer Concerts for next year, in arranging transportation for the basketball games, in providing programs at these games, and in clearing congestion in the locker rooms.

A recent project of the Student Council was assuming responsibility for the school calendar. This was done to relieve the office staff of a great amount of work and to create a closer bond between the Council and the classes.

Sometimes during the course of the year, the duties of the group tended to be unpleasant. These times included making a list of pupils without locks on their lockers, checking smoking permits, and closing the Teen Club. Though unpleasant, these jobs were necessary for upholding the school's rules. Someone had to do them.

Much of the Student Council's work, however, was enjoyable. The Student Council sponsored a dance for George Washington's birthday, and organized an all-boy cheer-leading team for half time at the basketball games. The Student Council also donated and collected money to help send the track team to France and Germany.

The year is nearly over now, and the work of the Student Council is coming to an end. Now the members can only hope that their work will be an inspiration to the Student Council of next year.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

may want to become - doctors, lawyers, housewives, teachers - we're really going to have to apply ourselves these next few years. "You don't get something for nothing in this world" is an old, familiar saying - and it's so very true.

Our high school education has prepared us to face these tough years with confidence. Heaven knows, we got through four years of it - if we could do that, we should be able to face anything!

But it hasn't all been work, either. Here at Central we have a certain unity which is rarely found in any high school. There is no real class distinction, and nobody hangs around in isolated "gangs." Our school is composed of friendly, gregarious people - people who like to do things together! Our sports - tackle football, basketball, baseball, and others - dances, the Senior Review, the Christmas play, Twirp Day, Ro Arsonic and Old Lace, Prom, and finally, graduation: these terrific times won't soon die out in our memories. But even these took planning, cooperation, and hard work - and you all provided plenty of each! Yes, it's really been a great year. For me, it's truly been the best in my life; you people have made it so. It's been great to do things for people who appreciate it and who cooperate so well and work side by side with you to get things done.

It's been wonderful knowing each and every one of you this year. As far as I'm concerned, the people at Central are the greatest - and I know you'll all agree. Wherever we are, whatever we may do, I know we'll always be proud we graduated with the good ol' senior class of '62 from Central High in England, the best there is - and not many people can say that!

SENIORS SEE COLLOSEUM, VATICAN ON PARENT-SPONSORED ROME TRIP

Of the 80 people who arrived in Rome from Bushy Park, 76 were seniors, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hedrick and Dr. and Mrs. Duane A. Young. The parent-sponsored trip lasted 10 days during which time the group saw Rome and Capri. Among the many sights seen in Rome were the Colosseum, Saint Peter's Square, the Forum, the Fountain of Trevi, the Spanish Steps, the Olympic Stadium, and the Vatican Museum.

Leaving the Grand Hotel Hermitage by bus, the group went on several tours, one of which was classical Rome. These ruins include Hadrian's column and tomb, the Forum and surrounding Palaces of Caligula, Tiberius, Flavius, and Severus present a chaotic mass of green and white with shafts of columns protruding above. Among the ruins a great variety of plant life adds color to a long-dead scene.

There are several ruins of the Christian era among the classical Roman remains in the Palatine section of the city. The Church of Saint Sebastian stands on the spot where he was shot to death with arrows, just outside the Palatine proper.

The Vatican Museum contains treasures of many ages and cultures. Among the more spectacular sights are cat-face kings from Egypt, several mummies also from Egypt, and rooms of Roman, Greek, and Egyptian sculptures. The museum also contains wall murals by Raphael, Michelangelo, and Titian, who signed their work with a self-portrait in the scene.

The Sistine Chapel is within the Vatican Museum and is a magnificent display of the work of Michelangelo.

From Rome to Capri by bus, the group passed through Naples. The city of Naples, with laundry stretched from one side of the narrow streets to the other, was dirty, hot and noisy, but it was Naples and we had seen it Capri and Anacapri, both parts of the island of Capri, were warm, sunny, and beautiful. The Blue Grotto, a cave in which the sea looks a clear, warm blue, was gazed at by several boatloads of awed seniors. The island has myriads of small shops with every conceivable type of merchandise at reasonable prices.

The seniors and chaperones left Rome for London vowing to return one day to the land of sun.
